RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

Representatives from every county in the State have been named by W. Marshall Bullitt, chairman, to act as a reception committee September 4th, when President Wilson comes to Kentucky to accept the Lincoln farm on behalf of the nation. Those named from this county are Messrs J. E. Robinson and L. L. Walker.

TIE UP YOUR DOGS.

The farmers living on the Stanford pike who have posted their land for three years, are making complaints against the owners of bird dogs that are running loose over the country destroying the nests of the pheasants and quail. The law provides that such dogs can be shot, and owners had best tie up their dogs.

APPENDICITIS.

Miss Jennie Wheeler of this county and sister of Dr. W. A. Wheeler, was stricken with appendicitis last week and was successfully operated upon at the Berea hospital. She is now improving rapidly.

Mr Donaldson Jones was also stricken with the dreaded malady and is recovering after a successful operation at the Danville hospital.

SQUIRREL LAW.

There has been some confusion in the minds of the hunters regarding the open season for the killing of squirrels.

The season opened July 1st, and lasts until December 15th. It used to be that the season began along the first of June, and hunters were bagging squirrels early, but to do so before July 1st is a violation of the State game laws and punishable with a heavy fine.

PAINT LICK BREAKS EVEN.

The Paint Lick first team won from Whites Station Saturday by a score of 13-9. The features of the game were a home run by Hisle and a squeeze play by Rupp and Hisle.

The Paint Lick seconds were defeated by Silver Creek on the latter grounds 9-6. The same teams will play a double header at Paint Lick Saturday.

NOTHING TO CHARITY.

Hettie Green, the worlds richest Woman, who died a short time ago, in her will leaves all but about $5,200,000 of her $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 estate to her son, Col. E. H. R. Green, and her daughter, Mrs. Matthew Aster Wilks. Of the remainder of the estate approximately $5,074,000 is bequeathed to the daughter, in a separate ten year trust fund to be managed by her brother. To her son-in-law, Mr Wilks, Mrs. Green bequeathed $5,000 as an appreciation of his having made an antenatal relinquishment of any claim on his wife's property. She leaves nothing to charity and only $20,000 to friends and distant relatives.

FAMILY REUNION.

Mr and Mrs R. K. Conn of this city had a family reunion, Sunday, July 30th in honor of their daughter, Mrs H. L. Morgan, of Clay County, and their great-grand daughter, little Miss Conn of Williamsburg. Ten of the children, thirty grand-children and two great-grand-children,--sixty four being present in all. After the bountiful dinner was served they had music and singing and prayer by Rev. Clere and Rev. Sebastian. All seemed to enjoy the day and it will long be remembered by Mother, Father, Children and Grand-Children.

May the Lord bless Mr and Mrs Conn that they may spend many more such days.

GOOD APPOINTMENT

Hon. H. Clay Kauffman has just received an appointment from Governor Stanley, as a delegate to the Southern Appalachian Good Road Convention which will convene at Lexington September 5th., and continue for four days.

REPORT INCORRECT.

A telephone message from Danville states that it is being reported through out this county that several cases of infantile paralysis has been discovered in Boyle county. They ask us to say that the report is incorrect and that no cases of this character are either in or near Danville.

MORE LAND SALES.

Garrard county farming lands are being sought after and many reports are coming in that would indicate there will be several more changes in the next few days. A sale of recent date was a piece of unimproved land sold by Mr J. B. Bourne, containing forty acres, to Mr. Forest Calico for $120.00 per acre. Mr. Bourne informs us that this same tract of land sold about twenty years ago for the sum of $30. an acre. It lies about five miles from town on the Buckeye road.

KENTUCKY SHARKS.

At this time, when the country is being aroused over the discovery of man-eating sharks off the Atlantic coast, and the subsequent death of several persons who were attacked by the sea monsters, comes the announcement that a shark has been seen in the Kentucky river. Farmers say that have been played with fishing tackle, and that country people along the stream are considerably alarmed over the sea tiger. More rational people contend that the "shark" was nothing more than an unusually large gar that was causing all the excitement. Gars several feet in length have been caught at different times in Kentucky river, and it is believed that it was one of these long nosed individuals that was mistaken for a shark.

EVERYBODY OFF FOR DANVILLE.

The Danville Fair which began there yesterday is drawing good crowds from this county and the majority of the population of Lancaster will be on hand today and tomorrow. They have the best show grounds in the state and reports say they are having the best fair ever.

HUGHES FOR- MALLY ACCEPTS.

In his address, accepting the Republican nomination for President, Charles E. Hughes assailed the administration for its course in Mexico, preparedness and maintenance of American rights during the European war. He declared for a new policy of "firmness and consistency" toward Mexico, "unflinching maintenance of rights on land and sea" and adequate national defense. "We denounce all plots and conspiracies in the interest of any foreign nation," he said. He endorsed the women's suffrage plank in the platform. A fourth of the address was devoted to the Mexican situation.

The entertainment will be given in the school auditorium and several artists from a distance are on the program. Miss Berta Jean Penny will delight the audience with her violin music and perhaps a whistling piece. These together with vocal and instrument music and living pictures will make an evenings entertainment no one should miss.

SPLENDID FARM SELLS.

West Place Brings $122. Per Acre.

The splendid farm of the late Mrs. Rebecca West which has been advertised in this paper for several weeks, was sold as advertised, last Tuesday afternoon. The farm contained about 283 acres and is located on the Kirksville and Hiattsville pike and is about six miles from Lancaster. Messrs J. B. and E. L. Woods were the fortunate purchasers and the price paid was $122 an acre, or a total of about $35,000. The farm is considered one of the best in the county and those who seem to know the value of real estate in that section of the county, say the farm is well worth the money.

Possession will be given January 1st 1917. Farming implements sold well as did the stock. One three year old mule sold to W. R. Cook for $83 and a four year to same party for $164. One four year old horse mule to J. I. Hamilton, for $100 and a mare and two mules, colts to Tom Chestnut, for $135. Col. I. M. Dunn, of Danville, was the auctioneer and he did it well.

GARRARD TEACHERS

Hold Good Institute. Dr. Ganfield Addresses Teachers.

The Garrard County Teachers are holding this week an Institute which is one of the most enjoyable and instructive in the history of our schools. Miss Jennie Higgins, County Superintendent, is in charge of the work, with Dr. McDougal, of the Richmond State Normal School, assisting as instructor of the Institute. Too much credit cannot be given to Miss Higgins for her efficiency and for the hard and painstaking work she is doing. It is not only at an Institute that her influence is felt, but throughout the year, she is constantly in touch with every phase of our county educational system.

Dr. McDougal has proved himself an able instructor and the fact that he has been secured here for several years in the same capacity speaks highly of his ability.

The Department of Music is in charge of Mrs. Gillingham of Harrodsburg, who conducts the children's hour every afternoon.

Interesting talks are given by the different teachers on some phase of their work, and round table discussions are held every day where all problems of the school are studied. Many visitors have been in attendance among them, Miss Jessie O. Yancey, Superintendent of Mason County Schools, who spoke on the State Tuberculosis Commission and urged the employment of a County nurse, to look after the cases of Tuberculosis in the county.

Yesterday afternoon, Dr. Ganfield, President of Central University, addressed the teachers and a number of others at the School Auditorium. In a masterful address he brought out the fact that the mission of the teacher was of the highest value, for it was in the school that the youth were prepared for active citizenship. "I believe in preparedness of the nation," he said, "to withstand attacks from a foreign foe, but no great nation was ever defeated by an enemy until it had decayed internally." He sounded a warning note to Americans and asserted that the curse of the Nation and the State was the placing of power in the hands of politicians rather than statesmen.

I leave Sunday for the Cities to buy Fall Goods and would greatly appreciate a settlement of bills owing me before that time.

Rella Arnold Francis.

The air of expected early departure for the border continues to throb in Kentucky's mobilization camp at Ft. Thomas. Officers admit they no longer fear a long stay at the fort.

It is claimed that Louisville has a good chance of obtaining one of the farm loan banks to be established by the federal government under the new rural credits law.

Henry S. Barker, President of the University of Kentucky, has asked the Carnegie Foundation to make an efficiency survey of that institution. The matter will be determined in September.

The model road between Carlisle and Sharpshurg through Moorfield has been completed. This is one of the most traveled highways in the state and has been under construction for two years.

"War on weeds" is now the slogan of Trenton City, and city and civic bodies are working for a clean and healthy town. An ordinance, providing a fine for failing to clean up, became effective August 1.

Forrest Bocook, of Lexington, a chauffeur with the Omnibus and Transfer Company, will remain with the Omnibus Co., although he was notified that he had fallen heir to $12,000 and acres of Florida land, 225 of which is in an orange grove.

J. D. Young, of Danville, has a dime made in the year 1815. This relic came into his hands accidentally in change, possibly by some mistake of the former possessor. He prizes it very highly and will add it to a collection of old coins that he already had.

W. B. Dillman, rural mail carrier en route to Hopkinsville, has never missed a day from work in the fourteen and a half years he has been in Uncle Sam's service, and he has traveled 110,000 miles. Four other Christian County carriers have traveled more than 100,000 miles each.

Seventy-five prisoners from the reformatory were sent to Bell County recently to begin road construction under state aid. Assistant Deputy Warden Gus Rogers is in charge of the prisoners, with several guards from the reformatory and the Eddyville penitentiary.

The first section of the new Cumberland and Manchester Railroad, from Barbourville to Manchester, Clay County, has been opened for freight traffic. The initial shipment was a train load of staves. Twelve miles of the new line are complete and in operation.

At the Bluegrass fair, which will be held in Lexington August 7 to 12, the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky will make an educational exhibit of farm, orchard and garden products and also many other material representatives, each intended to teach its lesson.

Three hundred miners at Fork Ridge, near Middleboro, went on a strike, demanding an increase of ten cents on each car of coal mined and 10 percent increase for the laborers. The trouble, it is said, was brought about by the superintendent increasing the size of the mine cars without any increase in pay.

An aged terrapin which has made its headquarters on Squire O. P. Overbey's farm, near Mt. Olivet, for many years, came into the limelight again recently. He has carved on his shell the initials "C. W. C." and the figures "1874," which were traced there by Charles W. Cameron when Mr. Cameron was a citizen of this county.

A tentative rule adopted at the public hearing of the fire protection insurance code, as promulgated by Tom Pannell, state fire marshal, provides that all private garages in a residence, or within 25 feet of a building, must be fireproof. This rule places private garages on the same basis with public ones.

The continued loss of tobacco lines to outside brokers in Kentucky is leading to action on the part of Kentucky agents. The danger of losing several important lines at Henderson brought about a meeting of field men at Louisville, and a committee was appointed to investigate the entire question and to devise means for protecting the business of local agents.

County Clerk John D. Hall, of Benton, has in his possession what is perhaps the oldest Bible in the county, or in the nation for that matter. It was owned by Thomas Bethel, of Ireland, and is dated in 1697. This family Bible contains the family record of the Bethels, of Ireland, and the record is in a pretty good state of preservation notwithstanding the ravages of time.

Commissioner of Agriculture Cohen has made a compilation of the reports received with reference to the number of acres of strawberries in Kentucky, and announced that there are 3,225 acres in strawberry plants in this state. The new town of Neon in the Boone's Fork coal fields, near Whitesburg, is soon to have an electric light and power company, to be organized by the business interests of the rapidly growing town. An ice plant also is proposed and it is likely to be established at once. Neon is bound to have a big building boom, many lots having been sold during the last few weeks.

The Paducah Press Club has presented Mrs. Allie S. Cope, county agent for home demonstration work, with an automobile. Mrs. Cope, who is a Paducah woman, has done great work in McCracken County, and her services were so much in demand that it was impossible for her to do justice to her work. The automobile will enable her to get over the county rapidly.

Fifty touring cars, occupied by leading farmers and merchants of Morganfield, made a tour of Union County, visiting various sections to see the crops. Union has been noted as one of the state's best wheat counties, but this year that crop is almost a complete failure. This has not depressed the planters, who are enthusiastic over the first Farmers' Chautauqua, which is scheduled for October 19-21, at Morganfield.

Tobacco growers of the Henderson, Hopkinsville and Owensboro district are again deprived of marketing their product in Germany and Austria by an order which became effective rescinding the privilege granted last November of sending tobacco to the Netherlands, there to be re-exported to the central powers. Unless this new order is modified the foreign market for dark tobacco grown in Kentucky and Tennessee will be ruined, the growers assert.

In the presence of several hundred of Kentucky's most prominent citizens, ground was broken for what is probably the most difficult piece of work in construction of the Dixie highway, leading from Chicago to Florida. The location of this scene is the very summit of the historic Scaffold Cane Hill, a few miles south of the site of Berea College at Berea and the point at which the Dixie highway coincides with a section of the old Daniel Boone trail.

It will soon be up to the states of Kentucky and Tennessee to furnish new sources of petroleum production, according to operators who are in touch with all the high grade fields of the country. The fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and West Virginia have been going backward at a rapid clip, these states having been pretty thoroughly drilled over. This summer Kentucky has come forward in production of petroleum at a remarkable rate, each month since the beginning of the year having shown a larger new production than the entire year of 1915.

Kentucky surety men are complaining of the ruling of the Workmen's Compensation Board fixing the bond to be given by self-insurers under the compensation act at five times the annual premium, with a maximum of $25,000. The board has indicated that it would require only a nominal bond from concerns which it considered financially able to carry their own risk. The surety men point out that a bond would not be given to a concern which was not now financially sound, and that the purpose of the bond is to cover the contingency of a concern becoming insolvent. The surety men argue that the bond be fixed on the basis of the liability of the employer under the act.

A Bluff

By ALAN HINSDALE

When I first went to the west, a young man of twenty years, I secured employment in a bank. It was a rough country in those days, road agents, horse thieves and the like being plentiful. The bank in which I was employed was in a small mining town—not many people, but a good deal of money in proportion to the inhabitants.

One day the cashier told me that he wanted me to carry eighteen hundred dollars in currency to a man in Taylorville who owned and ran a stamp mill. The distance was forty miles, and there was no public conveyance. I mounted a horse and with a roll of bills in my right boot leg set out on my journey. My only defense was a .42 caliber revolver at my hip under my coat.

I had done about half the distance when I overtook a girl riding on horseback in the same direction as I was. She was astride, and had it not been for her feminine costume I would not have known that she was a woman. However, when she turned her face as I rode up beside her I saw that she was quite good looking, though not of a refined type. I doffed my hat and bade her good morning. She replied to the salutation, and we rode on together.

In those days women were scarce in the west, and I, being young and not overthoughtful, was much pleased at having a traveling companion of the opposite sex. The young woman did not appear averse to my company, and we were soon on friendly terms. She asked me more questions about myself than I liked, but I judged that it was through the idle curiosity of a girl, whom I judged to be not over seventeen.

After awhile we saw two men about a quarter of a mile ahead of us ride out from behind a rise in the ground on to the road. From the way they looked back at us I feared they were road agents. I imparted my suspicion to my companion, and she said she suspected the same thing.

"Are you armed?" she asked. "I have a revolver," she said. "I got $15 in my pocket," she said. "You take 'em. If you beat the men off you can give 'em back to me." "They're much more likely to relieve me of them than you," I replied. "Keep them. And here—take this."

I dived into my boot leg, drew forth my roll of bills and handed them to her. She took them and stuffed them into a pocket in her dress.

When we came up with the two men they asked us if we had seen some stray cattle they were looking for, and when we told them we had not they said nothing more, and we rode on. I was very much relieved, for, to tell the truth, my heart was in my throat. It was beating too wildly for some time after the meeting for me to say anything to my companion. When I had quieted down and looked aside at him I saw that her own fright had been either negligible or her equanimity very quickly recovered. She looked pleased rather than scared. "Well," I said after we had proceeded a short distance, "I'll not need to trouble you any longer with my property."

"What property?"

"Why, the roll of bills I gave you to keep for me."

"I don't remember your giving me any bills."

I cast a quick side glance at her. Her expression was very much changed. All that innocence I had noticed before had departed, and a resolute look had taken its place. It told the story at once. She had offered me her valuables as a suggestion that I offer her mine instead. I had been victimized. She had my money. She was a woman. I did not relish getting it from her forcibly.

"You give me that money," I said in no soft tone.

"See here, mister," she replied, "if you intend to rob me, say so. But I want you to know that I'll get my friends after you, and if they catch you you'll swing like any other road agent."

The game was developing rapidly. I saw a possible situation I did not like. Probably she was a decoy—had been sent out to waylay me or any traveler—and her friends had their eyes on us. If I took my money from her forcibly they would come down on me and hang me for robbing a woman.

"You've got me," I said, "but there's a risk for you in this business. I can get a posse after you, and if they get their hands on you it will go hard with you. How much do you want to settle?"

"How much you got?" she said. "There's $50 in that roll," I replied, "perhaps more. I'll give you half. Call it $30. If you don't accept the offer I swear I'll have you in the hands of the vigilance committee within forty-eight hours."

She pondered awhile, then said that she would count out $30 and return me the rest. Then I studied awhile as to how I could keep her from knowing the amount she had in her possession.

"No," I said presently. "Give me the money and I'll give you your plunder. If you don't do that keep it all, and I'll see the committee."

The bluff told. She handed me the roll; I counted out $30, handed it to her and, putting spurs to my horse, galloped away.

HOW TO PREVENT INFANT PARALYSIS

A Sanitary Engineer Gives Us Some Practical Suggestions About How to Ward Off the Germs of Poliomyelitis, the Great Child Scourge.

DR. C. F. BALDUAN, director of public education of the health department, New York, has explained how to detect symptoms of infantile paralysis and how to ward off the disease and prevent its spread.

The first symptoms are fever, bowel disturbances, headache and irritability. After a few hours pains develop, usually in the lower part of the legs and in the feet.

Sometimes there are also pains in the region of the spine, in the arms and neck—stiff neck.

Within twelve hours the patient is unable to move his arms or legs and sometimes cannot talk.

Vomiting, delirium, twitchings and convulsions accompany the progress of the disease.

A temperature of from 100 to 106 degrees lasts two or three days. Sometimes, but rarely, the patient has chills, sore throat and skin eruptions.

Health is no protection. Often children go to bed apparently well and awake in the night with the first symptoms and are partly paralyzed by morning.

Cleanliness is the only known preventive.

The isolation of children in the house is next in importance.

Have children wash their hands and faces often.

Avoid buying candy, ice cream and fruits which are eaten without being cooked from peddlers and storekeepers who are not careful of their wares.

Don't kiss children on their mouths.

Keep their noses clean. This applies especially to young babies.

Don't cough in their faces.

Protect them from flies.

The germs of this disease, which are so small that they cannot be seen with microscopes and which pass through germ filters, almost always enter the bodies of their victims through the mucous membranes of the nose and throat.

Keep children away from their mates in the streets or at moving picture shows.

Report all cases at once to the board of health, so that the city's doctors can immediately investigate and remove the patients to hospitals.

Adults are not free from the disease. If your hands are dirty or if you are not careful about the preparation of your children's food remember that you can give your little ones the disease as readily as can outsiders.

Alpaca in Vogue.
With the return of alpaca to style a very practical material becomes the fashion. Whether in vogue or not, it has been worn under its more modern name, mohair, for many American women, who are great travelers as a rule, have always found this material the most practical and pretty for the traveling suit.

Under the French name of "alpaca" many pretty models have been created from this material. This fabric seems to be known under various names. Just as there are fine and coarse serges, there are fine and coarse weaves of alpaca, says an authority.

Three samples look at a distance very much the same. On closer inspection the thinnest and finest weave is marked alpaca or brilliantine. The other two samples resemble each other more closely. The one called mohair is a little closer weave than that which goes under the name of scilleme. The brilliantine looks to be a fabric more suited to dresses, the scilleme and the mohair to tailored suits and coats. Cravenette mohair is mohair which has been treated by a process so it is practically rainproof and does not spot or shrink.

Removing Ink Stain.
When an ink stain is difficult to remove and if the fabric is white apply lemon juice and salt and keep the spot exposed to the sun. The spot should be kept constantly wet with the mixture.

MIDNIGHT SPREADS.

For years it has been dinned into our ears that we should not eat before going to sleep, and we have foregone many a pleasant bite for fear of sacrificing our good health. And now along comes a noted physician and tells us that many morning headaches were merely the result of hunger. This does not mean that we can immediately proceed to gorge ourselves with all sorts of sweets and not have to pay the penalty the next morning. Sweets should be eschewed during the midnight repast, and one should substitute some wholesome fruit sandwiches, which are wholesome and nourishing and can be eaten with impunity even during the wee small hours.

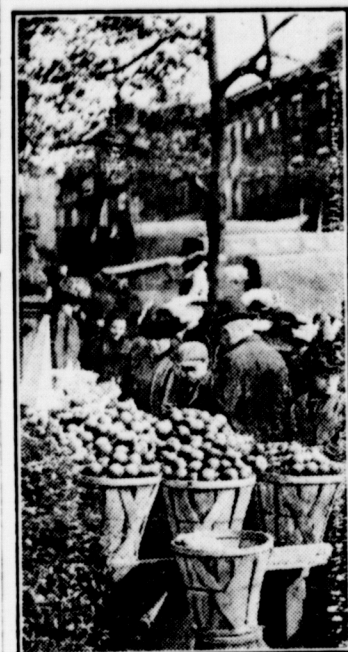

Scientific Farming

DOLLARS FROM FORESIGHT.

The Farmer Who Notes Economic Changes Usually Makes the Profit. [Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Perhaps the most conspicuous cause of success in farming is prompt and fitting change in type of farming in response to economic pressure as indicated by the market price of products as related to cost. The American farmers who are most successful usually sense the operation of economic forces long ahead of their neighbors. A large number of farmers change an old established system only when forced by dire necessity.

Not only is there the greatest opportunity to any individual farmer through quickly modifying his organization in response to changed markets, but such readjustment is of great value to the whole community, for such action in time becomes corrective of the changed condition from which it springs. Let us assume, for instance, that there is a community engaged largely in live stock production and that through some cause feed prices advance to such a point that there is more money in selling the raw product than in feeding. Under such conditions a large number of farseeing farmers will quickly curtail their live stock industry and become sellers of raw feed products. This in turn has a tendency to reduce feed prices and to increase the price of live stock products, thus bringing about the former balance.

Spraying For Codling Moth.
In answer to a correspondent who asks when it is necessary to spray for the codling moth and whether spraying for the San Jose scale will hurt trees already in bloom, Zoologist H. A. Surface of the Pennsylvania department of agriculture says:

"It is always considered necessary to spray all apple, pear and quince trees for this pest when they are bearing fruit. If there is no fruit on your trees there is no need to spray for codling moth. As you doubtless know, this is the insect that makes wormy apples, pears and quinces. Every good fruit grower sprays for this pest, if for no other. The first spraying is made shortly after the petals or flowers fall, and the second spraying is made about a month from that date. The material that should be used is one gallon and one quart of strong lime sulphur solution, either home-made or commercial, in forty-nine gallons of water, and to this is added either one pound of dry arsenate of lead or two pounds of arsenate of lead paste. For the second spray use the same material as for the first.

"Where you have much San Jose scale present it is a good plan to wash all the bark of trunks or twigs that can be reached with a paint brush dipped in very strong lime sulphur solution or very strong thick soap solution, or spray the infested trees when the young are crawling on the bark with tobacco decoction, kerosene emulsion or soap solution. After the leaves drop this fall spray again with the strong lime sulphur solution."

"THREE C'S" OF MILK CARE.

Dairy specialists have evolved a simple little formula for the care of milk in the home, and the same formula will apply to keeping milk anywhere. It is the rule of the "Three C's," the "C's" standing for "Clean" and "Cold" and "Covered." Excellent rules for the dairyman everywhere, even though they were written with the consumer of the milk in mind. That first rule should be one of the cowkeeper's articles of faith, the second one means a well filled icehouse for the farm, and the third and last means care and forethought—Farm Progress.

Foods of the World.

A survey of the world's foods shows that one-half of the viands have a sweetish taste, one-third are salty and one-tenth sour or bitter.

Saturday Holiday.

The beginnings of the Saturday half-holiday might be traced to an old-time custom among southern planters. "On Saturdays," says Professor Sanford in "The Story of Agriculture," "for either the whole or a part of the day, the slaves were released from field work. . . . In many cases they used this time and Sundays in which to earn money for themselves by hiring out and doing odd jobs. There were many instances in which slaves purchased their freedom and that of their families with money earned in this way."

The complete story of President Wilson's European policy remains to be written, but its high achievements already are fully appreciated by the people of the United States. No more successful policy, whether of peace or war, was ever evolved by an American President to meet the exigencies of a crisis in American international relations. The President succeeded absolutely in meeting the paramount need which his European policy was evolved to meet. That need was for the abatement of the German policy of making submarine attacks against merchant ships without going through the process of visit and search.

Suppose another man had been President of the United States when Germany's policy of frightfulness endangered the peace between the two governments. Suppose he had been a man of martial spirit, instead of one possessed of that keen understanding and sympathy for American ideals with which Woodrow Wilson is imbued. What would have been his main objective as he formulated his policy for dealing with Germany. Suppose even that he had gone to war, would he not have done this with the main purpose of procuring an abatement of the outrage which Germany had committed, and thus insuring for the future that respect for American rights which would enable our citizens to travel wherever they wished upon the high seas safely and without fear of their rights being violated. A war or some other policy might or might not have succeeded in bringing this about. The policy which the President has followed did succeed.

His vigorous exertion of the mortal power of American upon the intellects and hearts of the German rulers and the German people, and his clearly indicated purpose to break with Germany
if she did not respect our rights, compelled the most militant of nations to how to America's will. This was the supreme diplomatic achievement of modern times. Undoubtedly the future historian, in writing of the European War, will connect upon the President's achievement as remarkable and epoch-making.

The test of a policy is its effectiveness. The effect of the President's policy has been to preserve the peace of the nation, to withhold from American mothers and American young men
the sacrifices which war would have forced upon them, to leave America
free to press on to her highest destiny of national prosperity and national ideals, to safeguard the rights of the citizens of this nation in whatever quarter they were assailed, to keep the beacon light of human hopes and aspirations toward free government shining at a period when darkness had engulfed all Europe and was reaching out its hand to the home of free governments

here in the Western Hemisphere.

McBEATH.

Mrs. Emma Jones McBeath, who resides on the Danville Road, died at her home Sunday night after an illness of three days. Her sudden death came as a shock to her many friends and relatives. She is survived by her husband and two children, a daughter of seven years and a boy one year old. Mrs.
McBeath was thirty-one years old and was a daughter of Mr. Mack Jones, proprietor of the Hedgeville store.
Funeral services were held at the home
Tuesday morning, conducted by Rev.
G. W. Huffman and Rev. S. H. Pollitt.

SIMPSON.

The announcement that J. W. S.
Simpson had died at his home near Judson last Sunday evening, came as a shock to those that knew and loved him.
While it was known that he had been in declining health for the past few months, yet few knew or realized that the end was so near. One week before his death he was seen and greeted on our streets, although it was seen that day that he was suffering much pain.
Having married 23 years ago he leaves a wife and four children to mourn the loss of a loving husband and devoted father. He is also survived by several brothers and sisters, all residents of this county. After funeral services at his home Monday afternoon, his remains were laid to rest in the family burial ground near. In the death of John Simpson, Garrard county loses a good citizen and a Christian man.

HAGER.

(Bryantville Correspondent)
Mr. S. W. Hager, died at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Chas. Henninger last Friday after an illness of only a few days. He was born in Germany seventy nine years ago, and moved to this country at an early age, living in Wayne County until a few years ago when he came here to make his home with his daughter, Mr. Hager was a brave soldier, serving in the Confederate army throughout the war, and being in many important battles. He was wounded at the battle of Shiloh. He MARSEE.

This paper has made mention of the severe illness of Mr. D. White Marsee, of typhoid fever. The disease resulted in his passing into "the kingdom of perpetual day" Tuesday at half past twelve o'clock.

Mr. Marsee was an exceptionally warm-hearted, kind, courteous and generous man, he was also a splendid business man and had built up one of the best grocery business in our town.
He was born at Pineville thirty years ago, and was the son of Mr. J. F.
Marsee. He was married to Miss Annie Marsee, daughter of Mr. Noah Marsee, who together with two young boys, Oliver and Roy Lee, survive him. He was a member of the Baptist church and also the K of P Lodge.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. A. J. Clere on Wednesday afternoon, followed by burial in the Lancaster cemetery. A large concourse of friends and relatives were present, giving evidence of the high esteem in which he was held. Many beautiful floral offerings covered his last resting place, tender memorials of the love he left behind in the hearts of friends and kindred—Peace to his ashes.

Rest in Capital Cemetery—Twelve Governors, Ten Senators, Seven Ambassadors And Six Generals Buried At Frankfort.
(Frankfort State Journal.)

The endless procession of years marching in columns of fours, has seen thirty-seven different governors seated the executive chair of the Commonwealth of Kentucky in the last 124 years; and of these, who came and went during their earthly careers, twelve have returned to rest in the cemetry overlooking the capitol in which for a brief tenure they enjoyed that soothing flattery that honor's voice invokes.

Forty-four distinguished citizens have been sent by the Commonwealth to represent it in the United States Senate,
and of these, ten, obeying a command more imperative even than that of the people, have joined the ranks of their own generation, sleeping upon the hilltop above Kentucky's capital.

Within this noted burying ground repose the bones of soldiers who fought for liberty of conscience and the freedom of the sea; for the State sovereignty and to preserve the Union; to protect their wilderness home from the sullen savage; to liberate Texas from the tyranny of Mexico; to extend the blessings of self government to the struggling Cubans.

The glory of self-sacrifice is enshrined upon the tombstones of scores of men who wore the shoulder straps of authority upon the bloody fields of a half dozen wars.

This is not all. Judges, State officers famous lawyers, noted doctors, artists, scientists, poets and philosophers mingle their dust upon the hilltop with that of those, who

"Along the cool, sequestered vale of life
Have kept the noiseless tenor of their way."

Buried in the cemetery are:

Governors—Christopher Greenup,
Charles Scott, George Madison, John
Adair, James T. Morehead, John J.
Crittenden, Robert P. Letcher, Chas. S.
Morehead, Luke P. Blackburn, William O. Bradley, Simon Bolivar Buckner, William Goebel.
United States Senators—John
Brown, John Adair, W. T. Barry, Isam Tabbot, Martin D. Hardin, Jas.
T. Morehead, Richard M. Johnson,
John J. Crittenden, William Lindsay,
W. O. Bradley.

Chief Justices—Harry Innis, Thomas Todd, Alvin Duvall, Caswell Bennet, William Lindsay.
Ministers and Ambassadors—Martin D. Hardin, Alexander Robinson
McKee, Beverly L. Clark, W. T. Barry, T. C. Jones, William Taylor, Robt.
P. Letcher.

Among the distinguished names carried upon tombs in the cemetery are Colonel Thomas Dollarhide "1812," Judge John Milton Elliott, assassinated
in office in 1878; Beverly Leonidas Clark, who died in Guatemala, while minister there; John C. Mason, honored for distinguished valor at Monterey, and member of Congress; General Humphrey Marshall, C. S. A.; Captain Ed
Porter Thompson, C. S. A.; historian;
Major Martin S. Harmon; General Mar-
tine D. West, U. S. A.; Captain B. C.
Millan, Mexican War; Colonel J. W.
Craddock, U. C. S.; Major A. H. Ren-
nick, 1812; Major J. A. Grant, C. S. A.
General Thomas A. Taylor, C. S. A.
General Thomas L. Crittenden, C. S. A.

There are six general officers and nearly a hundred commissioned officers of various wars buried in the cemetery and are monuments to the memory of soldiers and sailors whose bodies never were recovered from the deep or the field of battle.

Of course, there is a tomb of Daniel Boone and there are scattered through the cemetery the graves of men and women who were the contemporaries and friends of Daniel Boone. Robert Burns Wilson and Henry T. Stanton, known as "Kentucky's poet laureate," author of "The Moneyless Man," and Theodore O' Hara, author of the "Bivouac of the Dead," sleep there.

The Daughters of the American Revolution, and former Representative L.
F. Johnson have done much of late to increase local and general interest in this burying ground of the State, and one notable project already well under way is bringing to the cemetery from neglected or unmarked graves the bodies of heroes of the Revolution, which are being placed in the D. A. R. lot, where the government will erect markers at their graves.

Nature's Plan.

Nature, the meditative man of the world seems to say, has no necessary contact with pain, and yet willingly assumes the burden. The great physician's answer seems to be: "Stay your wonder; it is this very pain, this apparent inconsistency of nature, that brings out man's supremest qualities of virtue and knowledge, making him
a veritable god."

Chintz Covers for Books.

During the summer months, when books are liable to be read out of doors in arbor or hammock, and perhaps left there, it is well to make gay little chintz covers to slip on them.
These can be hastily caught together with feather-stitching in a contrasting shade and will add to the appearance of the book as well as serve to protect it.

$100,000 Of Your Money Mr. Taxpayer

Has been paid to the present Congressman from the Eighth District, in Salaries and other Perquisites of office during the Ten or so years he has held the job.

What Has He Given You In Return For It?

Don't you think you've paid him about as much as one officeholder deserves?

Don't you think he's had the office about as long as one man should? You haven't given him a deed to it or a mortgage on it, you know; yet he appears to think you have, and that it's a serious offense for any one to oppose him.

You have made him a RICH MAN with that $100,000 of your money. Does he want you to make him a MILLIONAIRE before he lets go? Why not give a poor man with a family, a chance NOW?

Let's send a man to Congress from the Old 8th who looks at big public questions as does Woodrow Wilson, and who will never desert the President and the other Democratic Congressmen from Kentucky and vote alongside of John Langley and CALEB POWERS, the two Republicans from Kentucky.

Helm claims to be a friend of Wilson and is trying to be re-elected on that argument. He says not to "swap" horses in the middle of the stream.

But you farmers know it's a splendid idea to swap a balke horse whenever you get a chance---and now's your chance, Mr Democratic Voter to trade off the Congressman who balked when Woodrow Wilson asked him to vote for the Panama Canal Toll Bill and then had the effrontery to cast the vote of the Eighth Congressional District, along with the vote of Caleb Powers.

Here's how the Kentucky Congressmen voted on the bill the President wanted; who showed themselves his friends?

FOR THE PRESIDENT:

Barkley
Cantrill
Fields
Johnson
Rouse
Sherley
Stanley
Thomas

Democrat.
Democrat.
Democrat.
Democrat.
Democrat.
Democrat.
Democrat.

AGAINST THE PRESIDENT.

HELM DEMOCRAT.
POWERS, REPUBLICAN.
LANGLEY, REPUBLICAN.

(See Congressional Record, Pages 6088-89 for verification of the above vote, which Mr. Helm does not and cannot truthfully deny.)

Just look at that, you stalwart old "yellow dog" Democrat! How does that set with you? It wasn't Helm's vote (not by a jugful, though he seems to think it his own individual property.) no sir, you sent him to Washington to represent you; to vote your sentiments; to carry out your wishes. Did he do it? If you had been there would you have voted along with Caleb Powers or would you have voted for what Woodrow Wilson and every other Democratic Congressman from Kentucky thought best?

So the question is: Do you want a man in Congress to represent you who looks at these big public questions, and votes on them, as Woodrow Wilson or as Caleb Powers?

Helm has shown where he stands. If you agree with him, you ought to vote for him Saturday, August 5th. If you are for Woodrow Wilson and against Caleb Powers and everyone who opposes Wilson you ought to cast your vote on August 5th, like this:

FOR CONGRESS

Charles F. Montgomery

and then you will have the satisfaction of knowing that a man will represent you in Congress who will stand by Woodrow Wilson all the time Think this over carefully, Mr. Democrat, before you go to the polls. The Congressional Record shows that Helm deserted the President exactly as stated above. Why give him a chance to so flagrantly misrepresent and loyal Democracy of the Eighth District again?

WOMAN'S SHOP KENTUCKY STATE FAIR.

For the second time in the history of the Kentucky State Fair a Woman's Shop is to be a part of same this year.
This Department was inaugurated last year and was found to be such an attractive one that a continuation and enlargement of this phase of exhibits, that of placing woman's handiwork before the buying public, was thought to be wise.

In the Woman's Department articles of women's handiwork in textiles, art and cookery are exhibited in competition for prizes. The Woman's Shop is intended to give an opportunity to the ladies of the State to exhibit their handiwork for sale. A small commission will be charged but only on articles sold. All articles sent to the Woman's Shop will be taken care of to the best ability of a corps of efficient ladies in charge and the public who are attracted to the Fair will have an opportunity of purchasing something at a moderate price and that something the handiwork
of the home-makers of our State.

Articles ranging from quilts to baby caps and handkerchiefs as well as beautiful things in art will be on sale here. While some of the beautiful things that were exhibited last year were not sold, yet the names of the makers were taken by the visitors and orders could be given later. The idea of this Department is that the women in the home may have an opportunity to present their work to the buying public through the channels of the State Fair, their fair, your fair, our fair. Won't you take part in same?

Those who have not received a catalogue of the Kentucky State Fair can receive one by sending their name and address to W. J. Gooch, Secretary, Louisville Ky.

GEORGE FITCH

Paints Bad Side Of Dark And Gloomy
Ground.

Kentucky is one of the warmest American states, not only climatically, but politically. It is situated just south of the healthy repartee belt and is separated from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois by the Ohio river, which is often swum by minority delegates in Kentucky caucuses. Kentucky is shaped like a suffrage shoe, and is of medium size, about a No. 9 on an E last.
It was settled by Daniel Boone with the aid of a long rifle in 1799, and the Daniel Boone method of settlement is still piously maintained in most parts of the state in all important questions.
Kentucky is a wonderfully fertile region and huge crops are raised whenever the inhabitants have time. The state is full of fast horses, beautiful women, fine whisky and red hot men.
It hasn't much of a population, considering its size, but it could have had twice as much if the early Kentuckian had been water jacketed and kept below a shooting temperature. Menkill each other over politics in Tennessee and over cards in Texas and as a recreation in Chicago, but in Kentucky, crops, politics and family quarrels are all fatal.
The result is that in some districts
the Kentuckian who dies in bed with his boots off is sat upon by the coroner,
who tries to find the reason.
Kentucky raises more tobacco than any other state, when the night rider doesn't ride. The night rider is a sort of a human boll weevil which gets into the crops and ruins them with a hoe.
It travels in crowds and is brave and fearless whenever its opponent is unarmed. The feud is another Kentucky disease which has put a sad crimp into the population. The feud flourishes in the mountains of eastern Kentucky,

which the railroad and the public library
do not intrude, and is a sort of a four generation family quarrel conducted with shot guns. When one feudist meets another feudist in a narrow alley
and the second feudist refuses to side back the first feudist shoots him.
Then the son of the second part shoots the feudist of the first part, and he nephew of the feudist of the first part shoots the son and second cousin of the feudist of the second part and the brother-in-law and uncle by marriage of the feudist of the second part catch he nephew and grandson and sister and cousin by marriage of the feudist
first part at church and fill them
so full of lead that they have to be taken home on a track. Taking the census of Breathitt county by piece-work is a poorhouse job.

Before you decide on any wagon, examine the Columbus. Strongly built of the best possible material the Columbus wagon gives the most satisfactory service for the longest period of years. There is no secret in the notably long life of the Columbus wagon. It is the result of the methods employed in construction. There is no wood in this wagon which has not been air-dried under shelter from one to two years.

The axles and the spokes of the wheels are hickory; the hounds, bolsters and sandboards are oak, and the bottom of the box is straight grained flawless pine. These are just a few examples of the care which is taken to make this wagon as reliable as possible. The result is that the Columbus wagon is unbeatable in reliability and endurance. Mr. Wallace Cotton was the gallant young host at a handsome party given him by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cotton, at their attractive residence on Lexington Avenue Tuesday evening; brilliant illumination, handsome house furnishings, elaborate decorations, and a most delectable course of refreshments made the happy occasion one long to be remembered by the junior belles and beaux.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Conn of Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McCarty of Danville, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Conn of Paint Lick, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Creech of Hyattsville, Mrs. W. P. Anderson and children of Paint Lick, Mrs. H. L. Morgan and children of Clay county, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Conn, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Conn, Messrs John and Frank Conn of Lancaster were present at the Conn reunion Sunday.

B. Spindle of Norfolk Va., Mrs. William Farnau and Mrs. Elkin of this city. A number of Lancaster friends were invited to call on the Danville diners during the afternoon.

A delightful social affair was given at the home of Mrs. Thompson Hill at Hyattsville, on last Saturday evening. The social was given the newly organized "Christian Endeavor Society" at that place, and about fifty young people responded to their invitations. The house was artistically decorated in orange and white. Delicious ices were served in the dining room, where the same color scheme was used, both in decorations and ices. Mrs. Hill was assisted in entertaining by Misses Kate Hamm and Addie Crisillis. A very delightful evening was spent.

A most enjoyable picnic lunch was given near Kings Mill on last Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Ira Holtzclaw, in honor of Miss Bessie Burton of Illinois, and Misses Anna and Ollie Phierigo of Lexington. "My blood was in very poor condition from which I finally got catarrh and to make matters worse I was attacked by rheumatism. I want to say that Tanlac, the new tonic is wonderful", said Mr. W. C. Helton, who lives at Corbin, Kentucky.

"I had catarrh for almost a year and it was very bad. I could not get anything to give me relief. My system became run down.

"When I began to taking Tanlac I began to get better and now I can say that I am well—I feel like a new man. Tanlac is good—it is the best remedy for run down systems. I advise everybody who has rheumatism, catarrh or had blood to take Tanlac. It will make you eat—it gives you a good appetite."

This is one more case in which Tanlac has proven it's worth. It is the proof of Tanlac's merit that makes Tanlac recognized as the Master Medicine. RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas our brother, D. White Marsee, has been called from this life, and in testimony of our esteem and friendship for him, it is now resolved by Gardner Lodge No 29, K. of P. that in the death of brother Marsee that this Order has lost a useful and efficient member, and we extend our tenderest sympathy to his family in their great hour of sorrow, and pray that they may rest secure in God's care.

It is ordered that these resolutions be spread on the records of the lodge, a copy furnished the family, and that they be published in the Central Record.

High Calling.

Little Walter's uncle was attached to the commissary department. Naturally, little Walter wanted to know what that meant. His father explained that it was the commissary's duty to supply the soldiers with food and drink and the like. The very next day a lady came to call and asked Walter how his Uncle Paul was. "He's fine," said the young man. "He's a waiter now."

Comparatively Modern.

Many of the fruits and vegetables now eaten were almost unknown to our forefathers. Not until Henry VIII's time were raspberries, strawberries, or cherries grown in England.

LIVE STOCK HUSBANDRY

FEEDING BEEF CALVES.

Important That the Baby Fat Be Kept on the Young Animals.

[By J. C. ROBINSON, specialist for the Wisconsin Stock Breeders' association.]
At the stockyards they say that "very few feeders can turn out a fat yearling." Can't we change that idea, boys? In attempting to do this remember that we want you to get all the help you can from your father or any one else. That's the only way that any one can really learn, because no one knows all about live stock and especially "baby beef" production. Definite rules for feeding baby beef calves cannot be given, as every successful feeder has a little different method. But we will try to give you the general plan which most of these men follow, and you can make changes to fit your conditions. However, there is one rule upon which all feeders agree—that is, "do not lose the calf fat"—and it means that you must keep the calf "coming" all the time, especially during the weaning period. That's the most important time in the life of a baby beef.

The Hereford breed of cattle is a beef breed pure and simple, and no claim is made that the cows are of dairy usefulness. It is said of the Hereford that no other beef breed is better fitted to turn rough feed into high grade meat. The Herefords are great rustlers and grow fat on rangeland where other cattle fail to fatten. The steer shown is a Hereford.

Fall calves usually come in September or October. Most feeders say that milk is necessary for profitable baby beef production, and so they let the calves run with their mothers or turn them to their mothers twice a day. Allow them to eat grain as soon as they will take it. Keep the cows away while they are eating. Build a "creep" for the calves or turn them in a separate lot. Corn and oats, mixed half and half by measure, will make a good mixture to start them on. Gradually increase the corn and decrease the oats until at the end of eight or nine weeks they are getting no oats at all. Add a little oilmeal as you take out the oats until when they are on full feed they are getting twenty pounds of oilmeal to eighty pounds of corn. A small amount of bran with this mixture, say ten pounds, improves it, to my notion. Cottonseed meal can be substituted for oilmeal, although many feeders say that oilmeal is better while the calves are nursing. Give them plenty of good clover, alfalfa or mixed hay. When weaning time comes they will scarcely notice that the milk supply has stopped. I would keep fall calves off pasture entirely, feeding them in a darkened shed or stall. Of course they will want some exercise, but not much. A little corn silage, if you have it, or green corn will be relished by them. They should be on full feed by July or August and should be eating about two pounds of grain for every hundred pounds at the start. When the calves are twelve to fourteen months old they should be in prime condition and ready for the Christmas market, which is usually the highest of the year for cattle of quality and finish.

Spring calves dropped in March and April are usually finished for the May and June markets, which are generally good, since few prime cattle are for sale at this time. Most men allow the calves to run with their dams on grass, nursing until the cows are dry. Others keep the calves in a well bedded, dark shed or stall, allowing them to suck at night and morning, thus avoiding much fly trouble. During December and January they should be on full feed, so as to get to market during May and June.

Malt Feed For Pigs.
A given weight of barley will make better gains in fattening animals than the same amount of malt that would be produced from it. Irrespective of economy in feeding malt is a good feed when a small proportion of the grain ration is made up of it. It is especially good for young or weakly pigs when given in a small allowance. A ration composed of 20 to 30 per cent of malt with a mixture of ground corn and middlings would make excellent feed, especially when given with skim milk. While the malt is as easily handled as bran, the drying process does not reduce its value as a feed.—American Agriculturist.

Fertility In Swine.
Fecundity in swine appears to be in heritable, at least to a slight degree. This fact is borne out by heritbook records. Allowing for their errors, it is questionable whether the size of the litter really represents the hereditary factors transmitted. The wild hog usually averages four pigs per litter, very fertile sows of improved breeds often average eight pigs, but the Tamworth, with an average of twelve pigs per sow, is the most fecund breed.

FOR POTATO SCAB.

Tubers Should Be Sprayed With Formaldehyde or Corrosive Sublimates.

[Prepared by New York station.]

Farmers who grow potatoes will find that treating the seed tubers with formaldehyde or with corrosive sublimate is helpful in securing clean, smooth potatoes. According to the State College of Agriculture at Cornell, scab is responsible to a large extent for rough looking and often unmarketable tubers, and this disease is common throughout New York state. Seed treatment, they say, will destroy the scab organism on the tubers, and when such treated tubers are planted on uninfected land that has not grown potatoes for three or four years a clean crop can be expected.

When formaldehyde is used the uncut tubers should be soaked for two hours in a solution made by diluting a pint of standard strength formaldehyde in thirty gallons of water. The college authorities find that a barrel is the handiest container for treating tubers. An inch hole should be bored at the side near the bottom and a plug fitted to it that can be pulled out by hand. The barrel should be set up on a platform high enough so that the solution may be drawn off into a pail.

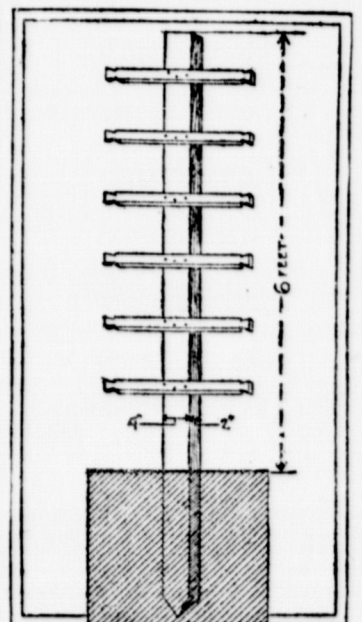

Further directions, as given by the college, are as follows: Fill the barrel with uncut tubers and then cover them with the solution. When they have been in two hours drain off the solution through the hole near the bottom, dumping the potatoes on the ground and filling the barrel again.

The formaldehyde solution can be used again and again, renewing only to replace that which is taken up by the seed potatoes. If the treatment is made when cutting is going forward no time is wasted in looking after changes of treatment. In larger operations one can expeditiously treat a large number of potatoes by having eight or ten barrels. Treatment can be made at any time previous to cutting.

In using corrosive sublimate soak tubers one and one-half hours in a solution made by dissolving four ounces of the powdered sublimate in thirty gallons of water. In the latter case use only wooden vessels, as corrosive sublimate loses strength when in contact with metal. To two or three quarts of hot water in a wooden pail add four ounces of corrosive sublimate and stir until dissolved. Then add this to cold water in a barrel to make thirty gallons. This substance is very poisonous. It should be kept from children and the treated tubers kept from stock. Do not use the same solution more than three times without renewing.

Formaldehyde is not as effective as corrosive sublimate in controlling some other diseases, but is just as effective for scab, is much cheaper this year, is not nearly as poisonous, can be used in metal or wooden vessels and can be used over and over again. These advantages probably outweigh its disadvantages. Plant disease experts at the college of agriculture say that farmers will obtain satisfactory results with either.

Pea Supports.
At this season the question of supports for pea vines is a troublesome one with many gardeners. When it is to be had brush is undoubtedly the best support, but with many brush cannot be had and a substitute must be used. Poultry netting becomes very hot from the sun's rays and burns the tendrils. An old tennis net stretched between posts along the rows of peas makes an excellent support.

A good support can be made by using stakes of 2 by 4 inch material, such as used for frames of houses, though lighter material will answer. The stakes should be six feet above the ground, sunk deep enough in the ground to withstand the weight of the plants and the pressure of the wind. Nail six crosspieces on the uprights eight inches apart. Two or more of these stakes will be required, according to the length of the rows. Two will be sufficient for a row twelve to fifteen feet long. When the stakes are set tie strong cord to the ends of the crosspieces, running the cord from post to post. Cut notches in the crosspieces to hold the cords securely in place.

Heliothere For Currant Worms.
Heliothere must be used freely to destroy currant worms. It can be applied dry or as a spray. For spraying one pound is sufficient for twenty gallons of water. Heliothere quickly loses its poisonous properties and therefore must be freshly mixed and applied frequently.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Owners of small farms have taken up the question of beef production. There is a decided movement in favor of meat animals in the central west, and the educational effort now going forward is bound to have a good effect.

This is a profitable branch of farming in more ways than one. Meat values are on such a high basis that farmers can more than double their money on beef where they raise their own stock. Beef raising disposes of fodder and grain to the best advantage, keeps up soil fertility and adds a large cash income to the revenues of the farm.

"I saved $7 on every calf I raised for the baby beef feed last year," said L. D. White of Union county, Ia. "Besides, they had more quality, more ability to lay on fat and more feeding capacity than any I could buy."

The owner of a small farm who has equipped his place with a silo and established a field of alfalfa can profitably handle a carload of beef cattle every year. If he cannot breed so many on the place he is always able to buy calves from dairy farmers in the neighborhood. The aim at first should be to produce a carload of marketable stock. Where the farm is 100 to 200 acres there is nothing to hinder the owner raising two or three carloads in a year, but it is best to set the mark at one load for the first season. This branch of business requires a little experience, just as everything else does.

With this program adopted a farmer starting out in beef production should try to prepare a lot of top notch animals that will average 1,000 pounds at the age of twelve to fifteen months. If the right kind of stock is used and there is good success in fattening, toy figures in the market will be secured. The careful manager will soon find that he can produce the first 1,000 pounds of beef much more cheaply than he can at this weight. My observation shows that the real profits are in marketing beef animals at an age not exceeding two years. This is turning over the money pretty fast, and by making it a rule to market the stock at an early age one can afford to govern the selling by the tone of the market.

As farmers gain in skill they will find it an easier matter to furnish a fine quality of baby beef. This is accomplished by the selection of suitable calves and a wise system of feeding. No point in the business is more important than that of starting with the right kind of young stock. Then it is only a question of forcing growth by skillful handling. Men who have dairies are able to secure a uniform bunch of young animals, as a rule, but if they fall short of the required number in starting a beef herd with uniformity they will always be able to find native stock to meet their needs. Generally speaking, it is unwise to bring in feeders. Young stock shipped from remote points cost more than they are worth these days, and the transportation units them for maturing rapidly. They don't begin to measure up with stock that gets its start in the neighborhood. A little observation of the market will astonish many farmers who do not know the demand for high quality baby beef and the profit there is in supplying it.

The small farmers of the central west only need to look into the matter of concentrated feeding to realize that they are able to take advantage of the high prices for meat animals. It will pay to restrict the pastures and depend more on alfalfa, silage, roots and concentrated feeds. More can be accomplished on a farm of 50 to 100 acres than is generally understood. The problem is one of management. The opportunity is one of the most attractive that American farmers have ever had presented to them. If they believe in diversity and in business farming one of the first steps they should take is to engage in beef production up to the full capacity of their land.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without tiring me, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

NEW OCCUPATIONS FOR COLLEGE GIRLS

Investigation Proves That Fresh Opportunities Are Open to Graduates of Ability and Demand Exceeds the Supply in Branches of Household Arts.

DIETETICS is coming to be recognized as a highly specialized profession. Calls for dietitians come from hospitals, clubs and progressive institutions, public and private. Salaries are not yet fully standardized, and the duties are not always clearly defined. This fact probably explains the relative scarcity of good dietitians. A woman who supplements her academic courses with thorough training in dietetics in one of the well standardized home economics training schools will find herself in demand.

It is pointed out that capable beginners may receive $80 a month and maintenance, and when experience is gained they can command salaries running as high as $150 and maintenance. Just at this time, when so many young women have left the colleges and universities and are preparing for some active work or career, other activities offer similar opportunities to the college woman seeking to apply her labor and knowledge in the most useful way, both for her own benefit and that of the community.

Extension work in rural communities is increasing rapidly, especially under the influence of a new bill which provides federal aid for instruction in agriculture in country districts. Women who have the foundation training in the science of food and in addition a strong teaching instinct will find in these openings a field apart from classroom instruction.

Resourcefulness in adapting the subject of home economics to rural and small village conditions and experience in demonstrating food preparation will make for success. Experience must be secured before a young woman candidate may hope to take charge of an independent district. Salaries range from $1200 to $1500.

Matrons and house mothers may well be considered in the social work group. The positions are less highly specialized and the scientific training and attitude, while important, must be combined with a general social habit. In orphanages and homes for children training in pedagogy or kindred subjects is desirable.

Opportunities as restaurant, tearoom and cafeteria managers are not many for women because the managers are usually the owner and must have capital. Calls for assistance in restaurants and tearooms are irregular, and the salaries paid do not appeal to the college woman who is capable of doing something else. Still a woman with a little capital may here find a vocation. Proved executive ability, a good understanding of food and strong business sense are essential. Some women have established noonday luncheons in the business sections of large cities with great success.

It will be seen at once that the position of housekeepers in clubs, hotels and private schools calls for technical training in domestic science and administrative ability of high order. The demand for well qualified candidates is frequently somewhat greater than the supply, and the salaries run from $50 to $125 a month and living. College women are desired, but few have the necessary training. Experience in one's own home and practical sense are a foundation, but no more.

The duties in these positions include catering to large numbers, scientific buying and the management of a staff of servants. The salaries are not large, but these positions often prove stepping stones to larger opportunity.

A Burnous Wrap.
A world famous Indian dancer has succeeded in reviving the Arab cloak, which is merely an enormous half circle of cloth or silk caught together in the middle of its straight side, and is wearing it in a number of picturesque ways. Sometimes she slips the loop in the back right over her head and drapes the long, circular fringes above one shoulder and beneath the other arm. Then she turns it round and crosses it in the back, letting the richly embroidered border fall straight from neck to heel.

HAVE YOU AN OLD BABY CARRIAGE?

And are you fond of eating on the lawn? For if you are in a part of the country where style does not overshadow pleasure, you can convert that baby carriage into a convenient carry-all for the family meal.
Of course the body of the carriage has to be removed. So much for convention! And on the wheel base there is fastened a shelf just the size of the old bottom. Another shelf is placed over it, about a foot above. And the whole is enameled white.
This contrivance makes it possible to eat in a spot some little distance from the house and still minimize the labor of so doing, as the whole meal may be wheeled in one trip.

As He Sized It Up.
The Girl—"You say that Miss Paddy and Jack Pott are to be married. Why, I didn't know they knew each other." The Clerk—"They don't. That's why they are going to be married."

Sickness and Death From Milk.
It is well known that the records of many cities show that dirty milk causes much sickness and death from diarrheal diseases among children one to five years old and that it is in hot weather that dirty milk is most deadly.

Not the Saleslady's Fault.
Floorwalker—"Do you realize that you were four hours selling those two women a yard of ribbon?" Saleslady—"I know, sir. But just as they got to the counter they discovered that they each had a baby just learning to talk."—Siren.

General Gallieni's Epigrams.
The late General Gallieni was a master of epigrammatic expressions. "Don't criticize until you can remedy," is one which obtained great favor in France, and might be recommended to critics here. "If you've got brains, use them; if not, plant cabbage," was another of the general's sayings. "Set things going, and keep them going," and "Say what you want done, but don't say more than a man can remember," were two other counsels.—Westminster Gazette.

Financial Note.
Also, young man, if you marry a wife who knows how to economize, there will be more money for you to spend.—Galveston News.

Sawed-Off Sermon.
And many a man who gives up ten cents to the church on Sunday expects the Lord to give him back $10 the next day.—Indianapolis Star.

Felt Her Loneliness.
"I suppose you miss your husband terribly?" "Indeed I do. You can't imagine how lonely I am with no one in the house to contradict."—Detroit Free Press.

Stops Nose Bleed.
Take a small piece of cotton; saturate it with vinegar, and insert in the nostril that is bleeding. Let it stay for a few minutes, when the bleeding will cease entirely.

His Troubles.
"A man with an easy disposition," said Uncle Eben, "gets so many friends that sooner or later he's got to throw some of 'em down so's to show his friendliness to the others."

Sympathetic Chauffeur.
"Confound you!" snarled the injured party. "I was standing with my artificial limb in such a position that the foot thereof projected beyond the curb, and you have run over said synthetic hoof and broken it. Ar-r-r-r!" "Why didn't you put your best foot foremost?" flippantly answered the taxicab driver.—Kansas City Star.

Realistic.
During a Shakespeare celebration a number of local amateurs appeared in the great dramatist's most famous tragedy. Next day the principal actor inquired of a critical friend what he thought of the performance. "It was great! Simply great!" was the reply. "As you played Hamlet it was easy to see why Ophelia should go and drown herself."

Aniline Poisons the Eye.
When sharpening a colored pencil, be careful not to get any of the dust into the eye. Many such pencils are dyed with aniline, and several cases of severe injury are reported. In the Archives of Ophthalmology, Dr. R. J. McCurdy tells of a young woman who not only had the white of her eye stained blue, but who had to have an operation performed to separate the lower lid from the eyeball, these having grown together in the healing of the sore produced by the aniline.

THAT SUNDAY DINNER FETISH

Interesting Reasons Why Modern Housekeepers Should Wear the Family From Sabbath Overeating and Keep It a Day of Real Rest and Peace.

THERE are more reasons than one for "blue Monday." The advent of the weekly washday hitherto has borne all the responsibility for this nickname, but most housewives know only too well that the strenuous Sunday, which precedes it, is generally the real cause. In the vast majority of homes, where the members attend church and Sunday school with systematic regularity, Sunday after "meeting" is considered more or less a gala occasion. The good man of the house, as well as other members of the family, expect an especially good dinner, with at least a fine roast, hot vegetables, salad and an elaborate dessert in recognition of the day. Also, it is not an uncommon occurrence for extra guests to drop in for Sunday dinner.

This, of course, means a very busy morning's work in the kitchen for somebody. Even the housewife who employs help is obliged unless the maid is very competent to be constantly on the alert to see that things run smoothly. Moreover, the mistress, to allow for the maid's shorter hours of service on Sunday and her "afternoon off," must frequently take the greater part of her own day of rest (?) to do the things that she thinks must be done.

To rectify this "Sunday bogey" set a reasonable hour for breakfast and make a meal of the simplest description, and let the service be somewhat on the English plan. Let those who are tardy wait upon themselves. Fruit, uncooked cereal, a plate of thin bread and butter, with eggs that may be boiled upon the table, will give all the essentials of a nutritious breakfast, especially at this season of the year, when heavier, hot food is not required.

When only one maid is employed and she is absent from home for the afternoon a midday dinner is perhaps easiest for the housekeeper. The essentials of this may easily be made ready on Saturday. Thus the actual cooking of the dinner need consume but half or three-quarters of an hour.

Or if a hot dinner is demanded, and it is always the wisest plan to have one in case there come a few days of damp, cold weather—broiled steak, fried chicken, pan-fried chops, a chicken pie that can be made on Saturday and will only require reheating, or one of the many savory dishes that can be prepared in the fireless cooker will all be found excellent suggestions to lessen the Sunday culinary labor.

In like manner try to arrange the supper or "light tea" so that it will be of the simplest character. A variety of dairy sandwiches, a cup of bouillon, salad or some chafing dish daintily and prepared and supplemented by iced tea or coffee, fruit and wafers (purchased by the box) offer the housewife a wider range from which to make her selection.

Dress Covers.
Five yards of paper cambric cut in two strips two and one-half yards long will make a suit cover. Join by selvages, lap over the other two selvages and button down the front. Cut a flap at the top and bottom over crosswise, envelope shape. Make a small opening at the top through which the coat hanger or skirt tapes can pass to hang by. It keeps your suit or light dress from the dust and is too light to crush them.

VACATION HINTS.

Be discreet as to your companions and your hours. Never loiter until an unseemly hour or with young men on the beach or in the dark corners of the porch. You may think such conduct is an indication of your popularity, but in reality it will cause you to be shunned by the nice girls and boys later on.
If subscription, please, salts or cucumbers are given either subscribe your dues or ask your chaperon to subscribe for you. Guests must do these things to be really in the swim at a summer resort. If a fair or bazaar is given for charity try to think up some original article to make and sell or something new in the way of a booth. Originally and a willingness to help makes time fly at a resort and are always at a premium. If the "big boys" do not flock around you at first do not hold aloof or sulk. Make yourself agreeable to some of the older folks, and the admiration of middle aged men or even old can float you on to belatedship with their sons and younger brothers.
Keep your hotel room in good order. Do not toss your clothes about or strew your bed and bureau with trophies of wood or beach. You would be surprised to learn how chambermaids carry off tales and gossip about your personal habits.

Creation.
To the sum total of the matter and energy of the universe nothing has ever been added, and from them nothing has ever been subtracted. Things are perpetually changing from one form into another—from one form of matter to another form of matter, from one form of force to another form of force—but amidst the eternal transformation nothing is created, nothing annihilated.
